<http://www.worldproperties.com/> is the Web site of the International Consortium of Real Estate Associations (ICREA), a global alliance whose 26 members are leading national real estate organizations in the world's major markets. ICREA provides benefits to members of these national organizations by assisting them in efficiently and profitably facilitating transnational business. ICREA also assists buyers and sellers in locating properties outside their country and in locating a real estate professional. Collectively, ICREA represents nearly 2 million practitioners around the globe and 3 million properties annually. For information about your affiliation with ICREA, contact your national association at the National Association of REALTORS.
